THE CULVER TRIAL.

Cross-examined: Was employed in the old and new bank over two years; the officers of the bank during that time were Mr. Austin, Cashier and Mr. Theodore Stewart, Teller; there was a bookkeeper and an individual bookkeeper; a letter came in February from Culver, Penn & Co.; don't know where the statement came; the letter was left in the bank or given to some of the directors, so with the statement; the keys were divided after the bank closed some two days and taken by the directors; the books and papers were kept in the vault I believe; I had a tin box near my desk for letters to be examined by the Cashier and entered; there were papers there near all the time; I had leave from the bank to be absent from the bank two or three weeks from the 12th to the 27th of February; Mr. Austin did my business; Mr. Stewart left some little time after, about the 12th or 13th of March; he was absent till about the 24th or 25th of March; I and Austin did his work during his absence; Mr. Austin left in January before on his wedding tour, gone two weeks about; I attended to his business in the bank; during all these absences we were all very busy; it would not have been convenient for the cashier to have kept all the books and done the business properly, besides a part were unexamined when I got back; the examining of all the accounts and statements would have been considerable work; Mr. Austin was generally busy; these accounts current some time lay over for three months; there are delays of this kind in all banks; our bank was a designated depositor of the Government; we used to redeem coupons; it commenced about the 15th of January; it was a very troublesome business; consumed a great deal of time; the books were kept in that bank in the usual way with all banks; the account current was behind; a portion of the funds of the bank were always in transitu; it money was to be transferred from one bank to another we don't always make charge of it till it is acknowledged by the bank receiving the funds; this prevents the perfect adjustment of accounts at the time; in the entries made by me on the ledger there were credits to Culver, Penn & Co; I did not understand the bond account; I credited Culver, Penn & Co. with $100 000 of 10 10 bonds sent to Washington in January 1865 with a discount on them; they are also credited with gold, for which they had not received credit before this entry; our books showed $540,000 in bonds at Harrisburg; had no way of knowing how the bond account stood till we heard from Culver, Penn & Co.; in making the entries, I told the Directors I thought there was an error; I did not understand the bond account; I knew there was not as many bonds at Harrisburg as our books showed; I also knew there was $50,000 more bonds at Washington than our books showed; one of the errors was a failure to charge the Auditor General with $169,-000, and another error of $20,380; according to their account current we would have been overdrawn with these credits; about the first of January we were overdrawn even as it was; our books did not show the overdraft, because we had not credited Culver, Penn & Co. with the $98,000 in June last; the accounts current were not fully examined; we charged on the collection register all sight collections and the time collections when we were advised of their collection; the letters of Culver, Penn & Co. were usually full and satisfactory; I examined the accounts current, the receipts, &c.; it was a part of my business, I think Mr. Austin discharged his duties faithfully; the keys were taken from Mr. Austin on the 28th, by the Directors; Mr. Austin and the Directors asked me to make a statement; it would have been troublesome to make out a statement within three or four days after the failure; there was a good deal of excitement among the people and the Directors within the bank; Mr. Austin could not conveniently make a statement and attend to the other duties; Mr. Austin assisted me on the statement and made explanations; Mr. Austin was not in the bank on the 31st; Mr. Austin said he could not stay in the bank, as a person threatened to arrest him; the Reno Oil Company had overdrawn their account $19,000; it had been overdrawn before, and paid up with interest on the first of January, 1866; the books and accounts were not refused to the Directors; they were kept in the usual place, no disposition was ever shown by Mr. Austin to prevent inspection; the Reno account in the individual account book was open to inspection; the overdraft was shown in the weekly statement; the balance sheet showed it every day.

Examined by chief: It was a weekly statement made of the affairs of the bank; the books showed not all but a part of the balance; it lacked $330,000, that is, there was $150,000, and Culver, Penn & Co were entitled to a credit of $100,000; we received from Culver, Penn & Co. a letter dated June 16, 1865 advising of a profit at $40,000; it usually takes two days to receive a letter from New York; there were specified periods in making out accounts with all banks—but not regularly examined; we got no account from Culver, Penn & Co. in Jan. '66; this account current would show the state of indebtedness at the time; on the 27th of March, 1866 our accounts with other banks were pretty accurate, not fully except the current account; we never did owe Culver, Penn and Co. anything if those entries of credit had been made; if the debt and credit had been entered we should still have owed them something at one time, the overdraft of the Reno Co. was paid by a draft on Culver, Penn & Co., the draft was $81,547.27, made by the Treasurer of the Company, the books did not show the true state of the bank at the time of the closing; there were other correspondents whose account current were not kept up; Culver, Brooke & Co., of Philadelphia; don't know that C. V. Culver was a member of this firm, for principal account was with Culver, Penn & Co.

Ernest Jennet sworn, says: I reside in Franklin; have been here fifteen months, Manager of the Western Union Telegraph Office in this place. A dispatch offered in evidence, viz:

NEW YORK, March 27, 1866.

"James S. Austin, Franklin:

"We have suspended. Close your doors and protect your depositors. Answer if received.
(Signed) "CULVER, PENN & CO."

This dispatch was received by Mr. Austin between two or three o'clock in the afternoon.

Cross-examined: I did not see it delivered.

Harvey Henderson sworn, says: I have been acting as Receiver of the Venango National Bank by appointment of the Comptroller of the Currency on the 5th of May last; since the 5th of May I have been in possession of it; I found it in an insolvent condition; I found $39,000 on hand, including some depreciated currency, Crawford County, Oil City, &c.; have looked over the accounts of Culver, Penn & Co. in the books of the bank since the books came into my possession; another additional account was rendered soon before or after I took possession; it makes the account larger than the books of the bank; the books of the bank show a balance with Culver, Penn & Co. of $591,000, and their account shows $620,000 against Culver, Penn & Co.

Cross-examined: The charter was in the vault of the bank, and was there till I took it out; no one but myself had access to the vault; I overlooked it yesterday; had no conversation with the defendants or counsel about that; the books of the bank lie in the bank; the papers in the vault; it is the office of Bissell & Co. now; no one had access to the papers, but any proper person had access to the books; the books have been out of the bank often; the Commissioners appointed by the Auditor General had them; they have also been in court; Mr. Austin had no access to any papers in the vault.

Thomas Hoge, sworn: Was a Director in the Venango Bank, State and National, from the organization; I put in and took out money; as to the Government bonds belonging to the bank I have the receipts of the Auditor General for the bonds filed; receipts offered in evidence; objected to, as the original and not copies were the proper evidence in the case; overruled; receipts admitted in evidence; Culver, Penn & Co. had no authority to remove the bonds that I know of; I got my first information that the bonds were removed when I went to the Auditor General's office after the bank was closed or said to be closed; I know Lucien H. Culver.

Cross-examined: Was a Director of the Venango Bank; and when it was first organized had some $4,000 in stock; I am a prosecutor of these defendants in another case similar to this; have resided in other States; have resided here fifty-six years; I was a resident of the State of Ohio some years; I was a resident of the State of Indiana in 1858; I have always gone by the name of Thomas Hoge; I have had a difficulty and bad feeling with Mr. Culver; since the failure I have arrested him three times; I arrested Mr. Culver at Reno; said I would follow him till he got justice; did not say as long as he lived, nor that I would crush him, nor that he was a d—d scoundrel; did not say this in the presence of H. C. Cullom; don't know that I can state all I did say; did not use all the threat; at that time and place I asked him for the return of $20,000 bonds which he borrowed; he said he couldn't do it; I asked him if he was going to pay me; he didn't give me satisfaction; I was excited; I told him perhaps he was a d—d scoundrel; I said he had robbed me of all I possessed.

Richard Irwin, sworn: Was a Director of the Venango State and National Bank from November, 1862, till its close; Mr. Culver was the general manager and superintendent of the bank from first to last; I did not know that any authority was ever given or taken away from him to take the bonds from Harrisburg; don't know of any authority to Culver, Penn & Co. to do it.

Cross-examined: It was my understanding as a Director, that Mr. Culver attended to all these things for the bank.

Elihu Chadwick, affirmed: I was a Director of the Venango Bank from its organization till the Venango National Bank closed its doors; I know of no authority of Culver, Penn & Co. to lift the bonds of the bank, no did I know of it till after the suspension.

Cross-examined: Did not attend the meeting regularly; Mr. Culver, as I understood, was the general superintendent of the bank in all matters from the first to the close; Mr. C. V. Culver introduced me to L. H. Culver as a member of the bank at 16 Nassau street; also to Mr. Penn at the same time as such; don't know that L. H. Culver was the attorney of the Venango National Bank; don't know that Mr. Walker or Carlisle had any such authority to lift the bonds.

In chief. I had no knowledge of the large transaction of lifting the bonds; I supposed that all these affairs were ordinarily managed by Mr. Culver; I know of no written or verbal authority; he was the acknowledged agent so far as I know.

Col. James S. Myers, sworn: I reside in this town; I know of the organization of the Venango Bank; was a Director from its first organization under the Free Banking Law of the State till its close, 27th of March; was a regular attendant on the meetings of the board; can't say how often meetings were held; meetings generally adjourned to meet at the call of the President; the President presided at the meetings; I am a member; was appointed Secretary; the minutes were taken down and afterwards given to the cashier to be entered (shown the minute book.) There was in the book an interval from July, '63, to November, '63; the first entry was by Bowen; can't say whether this period was while Austin was cashier; the minute not entered in the book was July, '63; it is in my handwriting, not signed by me.

Cross-examined: Can't say whether Mr. Culver was present at the time; Mr. Bowen may have been present. (Minute and resolution read to the effect that on the recommendation of Messrs. Culver and Bowen, Mr. Austin be appointed cashier and give a bond for $20,000, &c.;) some matters were done about the bank which the Board did not know anything about; I did not know that the Board approved, and did not know the fact that anybody should or did overdraw their account. There was a resolution on that subject; it was read to Mr. Austin, and something said about being careful, and a crash coming; it did not relate to overdrawing but to endorsing; I think the cashier had no authority to allow any one to overdraw their accounts; to my knowledge I think I was at all the meetings of the Board when I was in town; I only know from C. V. Culver who composed the Reno Land and Oil Company; Mr. Culver said the Reno property had been put into a Company, but he did not want to sell the stock until it was ready for market, till the Reno Railroad was built, which would be by the first of June; the account that was overdrawn was the Reno Oil and Land Company; there was no exception in favor of the Company in overdrawing of their account; I know the handwriting of Mr. Page; Mr. Culver had no authority, to my knowledge, to remove the bonds at Harrisburg; no written authority; it was my understanding when the State became a National Bank, that C. V. Culver was to take the bonds from Harrisburg to Washington—$300,000; Culver transacted the general business of the bank outside; he had no authority for removing bonds in any other way, unless you imply it from the other act; the authority to remove the bonds from Harrisburg; I don't remember whether it was written or not; a resolution was to the effect that C. V. Culver purchase $75,000 5.20 bonds to deposit in Harrisburg; this was in November, 1862; and another as to a conversion of bonds from one denomination to another; it first came to my knowledge that the bonds had been removed, after the bank failed; somebody telegraphed to Mr. Hoge after the bank closed, I went with Mr. Kinnear to the bookkeeper for a statement to show what the condition of the bank was; he said he would give it as soon as he could, no statement was made at that time; the statement was made at the time that Mr. Irwin named, on the night of the 30th of March; the day before the entry was made on the book; examined the books after the bank closed, but couldn't understand them; Lucien H. Culver had no connection with the bank.

EVENING SESSION.

Direct-examination: (Witness is shown a paper) This is one of the minutes of the bank; after the organization of this bank as a National Bank there were minute reports of the meetings of the Board; never were entered by the Cashier in the book; this paper is a correct minute of the proceedings; the minutes were read containing a resolution against making loans without approval of Finance Committee, &c.; Mr. Austin's attention was called to it; I know nothing of the authority of A. Carlisle and J. Walker about their lifting the bonds at Harrisburg to see who took the money; Culver was at my office and talked over these matters, stating that he was honest in his intentions; I was complaining that a man by the name of Carlisle, also a man named Walker, also L. H. Culver had signed receipts for the bank at Harrisburg for the bonds; Culver said, "I sent them Col., it's all right; they did it for me."

Cross-examined: I was one of the original directors in the Venango Bank; owned $4,000 worth of stock; got it of Culver; he took my obligation for the stock; Mr. Culver really managed all the business of the bank away from Franklin; the Cashiers, Fay, Bowen and Austin, controlled the bank affairs here; Culver made the purchase of bonds; it was understood that the principal business of the bank in Philadelphia and New York was with Culver's banks; I know what proportion of the funds the law requires the bank to keep on hand; we had to retain a portion of our circulation to become a National Bank; don't know what proportion of the monies of a bank could be used for purposes of discount; I don't know that it is the custom of banks to keep a large balance in Eastern banks; I believe we did get interest on these deposits; don't know what amount of Government loans was deposited in the bank; the bank could not use it safely; the Government drafts, which were always sight drafts, were paid with Eastern Exchange; we commenced retiring our circulation as a State Bank in January I think; I never knew how much had been retired; Mr. Austin said he had made arrangements with the Tradesmen's Bank of Pittsburgh to redeem our circulation, and would have them to be paid for it; I knew we couldn't get any National circulation till we had retired a certain per cent. of the State circulation; our circulation was $600,000, and there was $601,000 deposited in Harrisburg to secure it; don't know that we had retired circulation enough in January to get a National circulation; Mr. Culver told me that the Tradesman's Bank was paid by drafts on Culver, Penn & Co., and that they got pay from our bank; I suppose; there was never a Finance Board till the resolution of January 2, '66; when the bank organized Mr. Culver owned most of the stock; after he parted with a good deal of his stock, I thought we ought to attend more to its affairs; I had heard of a loan without security which led me to offer the resolution; it was not a case in which Mr. Culver or his friends were connected; the loan was, however, on collaterals, but not to the entire amount of the loan; the capital of the bank was first $100,000 then $300,000; Mr. Culver was authorized, or I understood that he (Culver) was to buy the $901,000 of bonds; I do not recollect that this purchase was made before the resolution; Mr. Culver suggested that money could be made by selling the bonds and supplying their place with other bonds, and a resolution was passed authorizing this exchange if he thought best; Mr. Culver told us, I think, what he made out of this exchange, but don't know what amount; from January 8, 1866,—the time of the resolution—the Finance Committee attended to the business; Mr. Austin, Mr. Irwin and myself were members of the Committee; at our meetings Mr. Austin sometimes laid before us paper to be discounted or offered for discount; the Committee met regularly when I was in Franklin; I cannot state how many meetings the Board held or how many I attended; I did not examine the book of the bank nor the individual ledger to see how the accounts stood; I knew the condition only by the weekly statement; left Mr. Culver to manage the matters out of the book and Mr. Austin in the book; I had the greatest confidence in Mr. Austin; did not know that a weekly statement was kept; I have no reason to believe that the books of the bank were not always open to the inspection of the Board if they called and asked for it; it was my expectation that the bonds were to be deposited at Washington to get a National circulation; I was at the bank on the evening of the day it closed; I did not think of the bonds at Harrisburg at the time; I supposed the bank might be crippled but had no idea that Culver, Penn & Co. were so much in our debt; I never entertained any suspicion of the insolvency till we got the telegram from Culver, Penn & Co.; I took out a part of my deposits—$12,000, two or three days before it failed; I left $700 or $800; I had deposits in Pittsburgh, and was drawing five per cent. interest on them; also I heard the rumor that Culver, Penn & Co. were hard up.

Cross-examined: I communicated the rumor to Mr. Kinnear; told him they might cripple the bank.

Re-direct: The books of the bank did not show the true state of the bank with Culver, Penn & Co. within hundreds of thousands of dollars; I asked Mr. Austin why he did not get more circulation National currency; I understood that the whole $300,000 was to be taken to Washington to secure circulation; the $300,000 was not deposited in Washington; $150,000 was deposited in Washington; the balance was in New York with Culver, Penn & Co., as I understood.

An argument followed on the admissibility of such testimony. The counsel for the people contended that the indictment charged the defendants with defrauding John Duffield and other persons to the jury unknown, and the Venango National Bank, which was defrauded in this way. Defendants' counsel maintained that the defendants could not be convicted by evidence of their conspiracy or their defrauding divers other persons. The defendant must have notice of the charge against him to know how to meet it, otherwise the defendant might be convicted without evidence on any number of indictments without showing they defrauded the person or the corporation set out and named in the indictment. This indictment did not charge the defrauding of Rynd but the bank and John Duffield; the defendant had no notice of any charges to be defended against but those in the indictment.

Before closing the argument the Court adjourned till Monday morning at the usual hour.

Cross-examined: We got a circulation of $85,-000 from Washington; Mr. Austin told me that the State circulation was coming in rapidly at the Tradesman's Bank; he said we had not retired enough to get more National circulation.

John Rynd, sworn: Have you deposits with the National Venango Bank? Objected to; counsel proposed to prove that he deposited, as a special deposit, $70,000 in United States bonds; that the interest was paid on them; that after the failure Mr. Austin told Rynd that Culver, Penn & Co. had the money; that it was not a special deposit.

—Thirty years ago Simon Cameron was elected Printer of the State of Pennsylvania. Thirty five years ago he worked as a compositor on the National Intelligencer at Washington city. When General Cameron was Secretary of War, printers were setting type in the Intelligencer office, who had worked at case while General C. was a compositor in the same office. These are lessons of life which the apprentice and journeymen in all trades can study with profit.

Death of Henry S. Magraw.

Last week the Hon. Henry S. Magraw of Maryland, formerly of Pennsylvania, died in Washington of apoplexy. He was taken ill while walking along Pennsylvania avenue and stepped into an adjoining house for the purpose of obtaining relief. Shortly after he was prostrated by a stroke of apoplexy and after lingering in an unconscious condition for about twenty-four hours died.

Mr. Megraw had filled a large place in public affairs, having been three years Treasurer of the State of Pennsylvania, and at the time he was struck down was deeply interested in several important enterprises. He purchased and lived upon his father's estate, near Port Deposit, Maryland, several years ago, and at the last election was chosen a member of the House of Delegates of that State. He has been exceedingly fortunate in business, and looked forward to the enjoyment of many years of life. He was about fifty three years of age. Within a short period he has lost two of his brothers, Robert and William, both having died very suddenly. Henry is spoken of as a gentleman of culture and education, and great energy and determination of character. He will be mourned by a large circle of acquaintances and friends.

The Constitutional Amendment.

The discussion of the Constitutional Amendment was resumed yesterday in the House of Representatives at Harrisburg. It would appear from this protracted inquisition that Governor Curtin's proposition last year for an extra session of the Legislature, to secure an immediate ratification of the Amendment, was not unwise. The generous competition and prompt action which marked the passage of the great Anti-slavery Amendment by the Legislatures of the loyal States in 1861-5 is in striking contrast with the present apathetic and tardy action upon a question of almost equal importance. The delay is the more unreasonable because the subject was quite exhausted by popular discussion in the last political campaign, and the present buncombe speeches of our Representatives are only a rehash of the arguments that have been a score of times repeated in almost every school district in the State. So clearly was the issue presented, and so earnestly and decisively was it ratified as the intentional and well-considered act of the people, and so overwhelmingly are their present Representatives in its favor, that it appears like a nonsensical waste of time to delay the vote upon its adoption.

ACCIDENT ON THE LAKE SHORE RAILROAD.—The steamboat express train which left Buffalo at nine o'clock Friday night, consisting of nineteen cars drawn by the engines "Ætna," Jas. Shaw, engineer, and the "J. Lewis Grant," A. Hizer, engineer, struck a broken rail near Farnham. The Buffalo Express says the engines passed over in safety, but three of the express freight cars were thrown down an embankment of 15 or 20 feet high. Two of them were badly smashed and rendered the transfer of the freight to other cars necessary. Conductor Burr, freight conductor Shaw and a brakeman named Higgins were carried down the embankment, the first named breaking his collar bone, Mr. Shaw escaping with a broken wrist, and the brakeman being cut, but not severely, about the face. The track was put in good order again at half past next day.

D. C. CLARK has just received one hundred and fifty barrels choice winter apples.

Death of Washington Hunt.

As already announced, the death of ex-Governor Hunt occurred at New York, Friday evening, after a protracted illness. The following is a condensed sketch of Mr. Hunt's life:

He was born in Windham, Greene county, New York, August 5, 1811. He became a resident of Lockport, Niagara county, in the infancy of the town; and, until he entered upon public life was prominent in his profession, and conspicuous in every enterprise connected with the business interests of that part of the State. He began political life as a Democrat, and continued to act as such until 1837, when, with many other leading men of that party, he took issue with the National Administration on its financial policy, and was active in the "Conservative" movement which resulted in the defeat of the Democracy in the State of New York in 1837.

In 1842 he was nominated as a Whig candidate for Congress in his district, and elected. He was again elected in 1844 and 1846, serving until the 4th of March, 1849.

On the 20th of February, 1849, before the termination of his last term in Congress, he was elected, by the Legislature, Comptroller of the State, in the place of Millard Fillmore, who had been elected Vice President with Gen. Taylor.—As soon as Congress adjourned in March, Mr. Hunt entered upon his duties as Comptroller, and was elected by the people to same office in November following. That same month he was nominated for Governor by the Whig State Convention, and elected in November, 1849—entering upon his Executive duties on the 1st c. January, 1850. He was re-nominated in 1852, but was defeated by Governor Seymour.

From this moment he began to lose prestige with his party. The Slavery issue, and the questions incidentally connected with it, became more aggressive, distinctly and sharply defined, than they had been, and Governor Hunt gradually failed to keep even step with his party. But it was not until after the accession of Millard Fillmore to the Presidency, by the death of General Taylor, that any general suspicion of fidelity was excited.

So soon as his term of office expired, Governor Hunt made his bed on the "Silver Grays" as against the "Wooly Heads" of that day; and remained in that association so long as it retained sufficient vitality to exercise any influence upon the politics of the State.

Gov. Hunt's subsequent career was entirely outside of the Whig and Republican parties. For a time, he occasionally appeared before the public in a vain attempt to impress his views upon the people. But he had lost his power when he abandoned his principles, and very few were found willing to "do him reverence." He soon sank out of sight in the ranks of those who were arrayed against the Republican party and the loyal sentiment of the people.

Refiners' Remonstrance Against Unjust Legislation.

The Petroleum Refiners of Western Pennsylvania are very strenuously opposed to the bill presented in the Legislature by Mr. McKee, entitled "an act to provide for and regulate the inspection of coal illuminating oils, produced by the distillation of petroleum, peat, shale, asphaltum, coal, and other bituminous substances used for like purposes."

At a meeting of the Refiners' Association of Pittsburgh on Friday the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That the passage of any law, making it compulsory for refiners to have their oil inspected by a State Inspector, before it shall be sold for home consumption, is an unwarrantable and unnecessary interference with our business.

Resolved, That the bill offered by Mr. McKee compelling us to have all the oil shipped for export inspected by State Inspectors, is full of vexatious and expensive hindrances to our business, and will tend to drive the refining business to other States, and divert all shipments for export to New York, New Jersey, and Maryland where no such laws exist.

Resolved, That we heartily advocate the passage of a State or National law prohibiting the sale of all explosive oils.

Resolved, That we recommend this Association to cause the appointment of a committee to draft such a bill as will effectually protect the consumers from the dangers to which they are now liable, by the sale by dishonest dealers, of explosive, adulterated and inferior oils, and that the bill of Mr. McKee, as it now stands, is utterly powerless to accomplish this end.

Resolved, That to give our protest against this bill, as now offered, proper force, we appoint a committee to proceed to Harrisburg to properly represent the matter before the committee and members of the Legislature.

A committee was accordingly appointed to visit Harrisburg and use their influence to defeat the passage of the bill introduced by Mr. McKee, and to represent the oil interest generally.

The Central Organ.

Editors Morning Herald:

I see that the Harrisburg Telegraph, in reply to some comments by you, explains thus:

At the initiation of Andrew G. Curtin's first and second administration, no Republican paper in the State gave him as fair and as unselfish support as the Telegraph. We saved Curtin from utter wreck in the Shoddy frauds. Only when he began to trifle with the best men in the Republican party, when he went courting after M'Clellan, when he began to coquet with Johnson, and procured the removal from office in the gift of the nation and administration, of tried and faithful Republicans, did we expose and properly condemn, and procured the condemnation of the representatives of the Republican party for, Andrew G. Curtin.

This tempts me to propound, with your permission, some questions to the proprietor of that journal.

Is it your practice to cover up "shoddy" and other "frauds," so long as the perpetrators of them bear a certain allegiance to the Republican party?

Is it not fair for the public to infer, upon your own showing, that if you did that service for Gov. Curtin, you are repeating it now in behalf of Gen. Cameron?

When Gov. Curtin "began to coquet with Johnson," did you not strive to surpass him?

Did you not "coquet with Johnson" on your own account, until the very day you received notice that you was displaced from the office of Post Master at Harrisburg?

Did not your particular spite at Gov. Curtin grow out of your suspicion that he "coquetted with Johnson" so much more effectually than you did, that he caused your removal?

The day you got notice of your removal did you not turn square about and commence "pitching into Johnson," thus showing to all men that you cared nothing for principle, but everything for spite?

Is it not reasonable, therefore, to judge that you care nothing for frauds, by Gov. Curtin or anybody else, so long as you are allowed to have your "sucker in" where you want it to be?

And, now, a word of advice. It is useless for you, George, to assume a virtuous indignation against plunder or plunderers. You are pretty well known by all citizens of Pennsylvania who have visited Harrisburg for the last ten or a dozen years. If there is any plunder you are mad about, it is the plunder you did not get a share of. You are well known. "Your sins have found you out," and so have the people.

The "Bridge of Sight"—over a new stream.

None more unfortunate,
Never at rest,
Flora McFlimsyllke—
Always distressed—

Than she who is striving
With might to be
Leader of those who dress
Fashionably.

All through the magazines
Soon as they're out—
Searching for latest styles
Not yet about;

None too expensive, though,
So that 'tis new—
How'er ridiculous,
Yet it will do—

Custom will sanction it;
Soon we shall see
Myriads foolishly
Following thee.

Take her up tenderly,
Touch not her hair,
Arranged in those ringlets,
Long and so fair—

Disturb not her tresses
With scolding causes;
Though not intentionally
Yet without thinking,
You might eventually
See that she's shrinking.

'Tis not your touches
That she is dreading—
Only her care
That no calamity
Should have befallen the Beautiful hair.

Come not too near her!
Distances must find
That exquisite harmony
Where colors blend.

Is she not charming?
But 'tis alarming
To see the art—
By lightly applying
The painting and applying
Cosmetics impart.
White as the lilies far,
Pink as the roses are,
Beautiful no;
But blind is humanity
If their eyes cannot see
Charms not her own.

What's on her dizzied pate
So like a dinner hat?
Surely no bonnet!
Only a little cap
With a long ribbon strap
Crossed over top it.

Oh! for the folly there!
Wont it come next?
Is not the flesh an world
Easily perplexed?
Look at her tiny waist
In a zone of steel incased—
Is she not young?
Oh! well it matters not,
Are she as the common lot,
Heedless of wrong.

Short must her breathing be—
Heard you that sigh?
Let not an I to see
How visibly

Great lines of suffering,
Deeper of by care,
Tell their tale of bitterness
Written on there!

She leans up her dresses, so
Wide ruffled as to say show,
And to a little feet,
Barred and laced to meet,
Peep out below.

Ah! how sorrowful to see
In a mere of form,
Love and enthusiasm
Indigen, hands
Devoted all to the pittance
That it demands!

Does not she sometimes think
Of the dire draughts to my drink,
Of the pain,
Of the many forms that be
Heeding these miseringly
For little gain?

Alas! for the vanity
Rife in humanity,
When will it cease?
Is it not sorrowful
That this as powerful
On the increase?

Where the light dances
Trip the philosophic lances,
Of young and fair,
Pity there be a heart for her,
With care left behind her,
Where fate has consigned her
To misery.

See rushes in heading
With the merry throng,
And, with wild delight,
Stays in the midst of it!
Can ye but think of it,
Lovers at night?
Picture the silk flat—
Heartless sight!

Where is her sister dear?
Is no her mother near?
'Tis but too true—
Strolling close by her side,
Drifting out with the tide,
Swiftly they, all will ride
Their courses through.

Lift her so tenderly!
Take her from there;
Bear her out gently;
Is she aware
That all her life is
Will be for this,
When she has striven
Hard to repair

Moments so wasted,
Days so misspent!
Return at thy errors
Dies date one!

Oh! world, think kindly
Of her, who so blindly
Accepted temptation,
Without reservation,
If she is penit.
God pities the sinner
If He can but win her
Once to relent—

For knowing our weakness
We're kindly forgiven—
The humble, contrite, are Admitted to Heaven.

MISCHIEVOUS REPORTS.—An exchange paper has the following well turned remarks in regard to the circulating of reports derogatory to the standing of business men and business houses, and these same remarks are worth repeating in some other communities:

It is not out of place to rebuke a provoking disposition on the part of many people to give currency to gossip that silently injuriously the standing of business men. There is a strange propensity to exaggerate the misfortunes of men when they really do occur, but stranger still is the mean inclination of some to circulate rumors prejudicial to the credit of those who, though pinched in their negotiations, may nevertheless be thoroughly solvent, or at least still clear of protest. No good results to the business community in giving prominence to the misfortunes of a merchant who may be honestly prostrated. On the other hand, it is likely to increase distrust and multiply disasters, and very great harm may be done by giving currency to rumors affecting one's credit, that are not wholly justified by the facts. The most solvent of houses may not be able, at times, to withstand such shocks to its credit, and the more prominent the reputation of the concern may have been, the greater is the disposition to make it a target for mean-spirited, invidious comments.

We copy the following from the Warren Ledger of January 30th. The oil interests of Tidioute are destined to play an important part in the great petroleum drama of Pennsylvania.—We hope the "blossoms" on the Colonel's territory, described below, are not destined to "waste their sweetness on desert air."

Col. Henry McKenty, of Tidioute, dealer in oil lands, oil interests, and Western and Southern lands, has been spending a few days in Warren. While here he showed us a finely executed map of a tract of oil territory in the vicinity of Tidioute. He has purchased this tract and divided it into five acre lots, and now offers it for sale. The Colonel proposes testing it himself early in the spring. Outward indications of oil are the best that can be asked for. He had with him a piece of oil "blossom," with which the surface is covered. Where this rock, or blossom is not found it is useless to bore for oil. Col. McKenty has a fame almost world-wide. His transactions are based on justice to the parties that buy. His name is becoming a household word in this region. Those who want to buy or sell land will find the Colonel equal to the emergency every time. He informs us that operations on a large scale are to be commenced in the spring and also that it is his opinion that crude oil will command a good price and that business will be brisk.

Snow's Patent Liquid Packing Pump for OIL WELLS.—This celebrated "Pump" having been most successfully and generally used in the oil regions of Pennsylvania, and bearing a fame unsurpassed for its durability and wear, and the general good results of its application, doing away with leather and all other flexible packing, thereby avoiding the perplexities of a leather packing valve, and having all the advantages of other pumps and valves in bringing and keeping up the production of oil, I take pleasure in announcing to the public that I am now prepared to furnish any demand for these Pumps at the shortest notice. Below I give a few of the numerous testimonials I have received in their favor, and also "by permission," refer for information as to their durability, and general good results to H. W. Faucett, Superintendent of Philadelphia Petroleum Company, using them in every pumping well belonging to the Company; W. J. Rancie, Superintendent of lease 35, Bannohoff Run; J. P. Fowler, Superintendent of New York & Chicago Petroleum Company; C. L. I. Wilmot, Church Run; Wm. Spence, Bennehoff Run; Mr. J. Hoope, Superintendent of Bennehoff Run Petroleum Company; E. L. Pitcher, Superintendent of National Oil Company; C. H. Page, Superintendent Ocean Oil Company.

TESTIMONIALS.

WEST PITHOLE, Pa., Nov. 21, 1865.

WILLIAM H. SNOW, Esq.—Dear Sir: In answer to your request for my experience with your pump, I cheerfully state that I have used one of them for about two months and have found them entirely reliable, having performed all the requirements that was claimed for them.

The entire absence of leather packing and consequent lessening of friction in the working barrels makes the strain on the sucker rods much less, which is a great consideration in pumping deep wells, and I cheerfully recommend them to those having such.

Yours, respectfully, EDWIN L. PITCHER, Superintendent National Oil Company.

BENNEHOFF RUN, Nov 21, 1866.

W. H. SNOW—Dear Sir: In reply to yours, asking for a "correct" statement as to the use of your pump on this farm, I cheerfully certify that on the 15th of August last I applied one of your pumps to well 26, belonging to the Bennehoff Run Petroleum Company, which had been pumping for weeks with a long working barrel and "sucking" about forty barrels a day. On the application of the "Snow Pump" the well increased to over one hundred barrels per day, and has been pumping at that rate ever since without ever having drawn the sucker rods to this date.

Also certify that I have three of your pumps in my own wells, viz: Nos. 51, "54" and 2, which have worked to my entire satisfaction, giving little or no trouble with drawing sucker rods. No. "54" in this morning producing at the rate of one hundred barrels per day.

Yours, very truly, WM SPENCE.

TITUSVILLE, Dec. 29, 1866.

W. B. SNOW, Esq.—Dear Sir: I can cheerfully certify in favor of your very valuable Pump I bought of Bryan, Dillingham & Co., having previously tried all manner of patent valves, with no apparent success. I found that your pump has increased my well over one half, and considering the low price of oil, when it takes a large production to pay expenses, I consider your pump invaluable. If another could not be procured I would not take $500 for it. R. W. HOLBROOK, Supt. N. Y. & Providence Lease Co.

Orders for these Pumps will be filled by addressing BRYAN, DILLINGHAM & CO., Sole Manufacturers, Titusville, Pa., and forwarded by express to all parts of the oil regions.

Clark Delano, of Rochester, Minn., committed suicide by taking strychnine. The cause is supposed to be trouble between him and his brother. He soon expired in the arms of his wife, to whom he had been wedded but a few short weeks.

"Can you do all sorts of casting here?" said a solemn looking chap at the ironworks the other day. "Yes," said Frank, preparing to take his order, "all sorts." "Well, then," returned the solemn inquirer, "I would like to have you cast a shadow." He was immediately cast out.
